Burns and Beecher.

[The following poem was written by Mrs. S Webb, of Scotland, sixteen years ago, on the occasion of the appointment of Henry Ward Beecher to lecture at the celebration of Burns' one hundredth anniversary, January, 1859:]

> I learn that the task has fa'n to you To gie the bard o' Ayr his due; But use him well-And keep sweet Charity in view, E'en for the De'il.

His few sma' fau'ts ye need na tell; Folks say ye're no o'er guid yoursel'; But De'il may care, Gin ve're but half as guid as Rab, We'll ask nae mair. Then dinns seck to find a flaw. But o'er his fou'ts a mantle thraw, And leave the rest To him who made and tried the heart;

A century hence, an' wha can telt What may befa' yer cannie sel'? Some holy preacher May tak' the endgels up for ane Ca'd Harry Beecher.

I ha'e no doubt you'd like to ken Wha 'tis that tak's the suld quill pen To write this rhyme. The knowledge wad be little worth-

I'm past my prime. But when a lassie young an' fair, I've wandered by the bonnie Ayr Wi' heart some glee; E'er fate's stern mandate sent me forth

A skeptic who was badgering a simple-minded old man about miracles and Balaam's ass finally said: "How is it possible for an ass to talk like a man?" " Well," replied the honest old believer, with meaning emphasis, "I don't see why it ain't as easy for an ass to talk like a man as it is for a man to talk like an ass!"

A celebrated writer says: "No woman can be a lady who can wound or mortify another. No matter how beautiful, how refined or how cultivated she may be, she is in reality, coarse, and the innate vulgarity of her nature manifests itself here. Uniformly kind, courteous and polite treatment of all persons is one mark of a true woman."

Mrs. Partington's Ike writes from Manhattan Beach that he saw " the elite alight, the calcium light, moonlight, the electric light and daylight through his mother's pocketbook." There is no picnic ant, however lowly,

That for a livelihood must toil and beg, But lifts the largest man up, grandly, slowly. When it goes browsing up his trowsers leg.

the yellow fever at Memphis, the Avalanche says : " Parents have deserted children, and children parents. husbands their wives, but not one wife a husband."

The Boston Transcript tells of a young man who modestly applied for a vacation and made a remark to the effect that he was engaged to be married, and that if nobody objected he would like to be there when the clergyman began.

nessee that he was a great admirer and friend of Sergent S. Prentiss, the gifted New Englander who went south and gained such a reputation for oratory. At a Whig mass meeting in Nashville in 1844, Prentiss made an unusually brilliant speech, and, not being very well, fainted from exhaustion at the close. Peyton, believing that such a speech had never been delivered before, was extremely enthusiastic, and bending over the orator's unconscious figure exclaimed, "Don't come to, Prentiss. Now is your time to die; for this is the completion and culmination of your fame." Prentiss did not follow the advice. He lived six years after that, and died at 41, having achieved the fame of one of the most eminent of American orators. Many of his admirers regarded him as superior

The following is an extract from a speech made by a Democratic lawyer, of Charleston. S. C., to a colored audience, which has found its way to Republican headquarters :

Each of you represent $900. You would have brought that in 1860. You were freed without our consent, and now, if you will vote the Demo-cratic ticket, we will make the Yankees pay for you, and then we will give you half of the money. There stands old Uncle Jim. He has a wife and eight children, for which the north will have to pay $9,000, once half of which I will give him, and the rest I keep. Then he will not be dependent upon charity. This, my dear colored friends, is the practical solution of the forty acres and a mule question, and you will some day be lifted from your proverty by your old masters. Only vote the Democratic ticket, and we will soon be independent of the antamntible Vankage
